Social media use amongst taxi and private hire drivers and customers

11056
November 2011
Please note that the copyright in the attached report is owned by TfL and the provision of information under Freedom of Information Act does not give the recipient a right to re-use the information in a way that would infringe copyright (for example, by publishing and issuing copies to the public).

Brief extracts of the material may be reproduced under the fair dealing provisions of the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988 for the purposes of research for non-commercial purposes, private study, criticism, review and news reporting.

Details of the arrangements for reusing the material owned by TfL for any other purpose can be obtained by contacting us at enquire@tfl.gov.uk.

Research conducted by SPA future thinking
Contents

- Background and context
- Summary
- Main findings
  - Taxis
  - PHV
  - Apps
  - Customers
- Discussion / questions
Background and context
Transport for London is increasingly exploiting social media as a research tool

- Allows us to hear the voices of those who would not always respond to traditional research methods
- Puts content in its natural context, and avoids the sense that someone is ‘speaking to the researcher’
- As such you tend to find what people are ‘really talking about’

Social media is a broad term encompassing a wide variety of (online) content

- Includes well known websites like Facebook, Twitter and YouTube
- But also other user-generated content such as on personal blogs and forums
- For the purposes of this study we are also looking at mobile Apps
As the licensing authority TfL needs to communicate in a cost-effective way with both the taxi and private hire trade

- At present updates and notices are issued through the TfL website, and occasionally letters
- However means are sought to communicate with drivers with much greater immediacy and on a more personal basis

Taxi drivers and PHV drivers tend to have different demographic profiles

- Taxi drivers tend to be white men, while PHV drivers are more likely to be from black, Asian or minority ethnic (BAME) communities

The private hire trade encompasses minicab, chauffeur services and some tour guide / private contact services, ranging from very small operators to large companies

- As such it is a diverse community with varied needs

It is known that there has been growth in the use of social media and smartphone technology among taxi and PHV drivers

- This report sets out knowledge gathered through desk research into the extent and nature of TPH use of social media
- While some taxi and PHV drivers do use social media, we will see that others do not and this must be borne in mind when considering any communications strategy
Summary
The majority of content appears to be generated by taxi drivers rather than PHV
- There seems to be a community of up between 500 and 1,000 taxi drivers who are actively using social media
- It may be that PH users are harder to detect

Taxi drivers use social media for all kinds of things
- Arranging bookings, sharing road traffic and demand information, experiences and advice about the trade
- But also non-work related content, such as general conversation about football or politics

For PHV drivers and operators there is less visible content
- Twitter is mainly used to advertise services

Apps market is growing and tends to be divided into taxi and private hire Apps
- Remains to be seen what customer uptake is likely to be

Amongst customers themselves there is a reasonable amount of content regarding TPH
- Mainly taxis, or Addison Lee – as these are the major players
- The majority of content is on Twitter and centres on individual experiences of using taxis and minicabs
Taxi drivers and social media
A small group of taxi drivers are using social media
• Probably up to a maximum of 1,000, out of the total of c26,000 drivers overall*

They are using a wide variety of social media
• Twitter is very commonly used
• There are various active forums and blogs
• YouTube and Flickr are both in use
• Little evidence of widespread Facebook use

There is some overlap between the medium and the message:

Road conditions / demand management
- Twitter
- Blogs

Bookings
- Apps
- Twitter

Chit-chat
- Twitter
- Forums

Trade discussions
- Forums

* Estimate based on the number of users of cabup and various forums
Society of London taxi drivers to share information and bookings
- At present relatively small – only a few hundred drivers out of the total 25,000
- All ‘authenticated’ at ‘Twitter meetings’ where they have to show their badge
- Then signed up to closed twitter feeds
- Claimed sign up with STaN campaign – website claims they are “Fully TFL-Affiliated”
- 18,000 followers at present

@TLC_chair is the controller, who assigns the bookings
- @cabup is a community scheme sharing information about road conditions and traffic

Used to be free, now they are charging a £30 annual fee for @TLC_Chair
- And for @cabup they have a sponsorship deal with Ascott Cab Company but will charge new members

Where there are customer comments, these tend to be very positive @cabup is used for sharing traffic and demand information

Though this is closed off and cannot be viewed by non-taxi drivers

To become a member you need to be a registered taxi driver, and to have attended a ‘Twitter School’ session run by TLC, normally at Kings Cross Taxi Centre at Camley Street

Messages contain slang / abbreviations (eg RAH = Royal Albert Hall)

NOTE: this example is publicly available on the tweetalondontaxi website, not behind a password
General chat is also prevalent amongst drivers

Taxi drivers tweet about everything from politics to football

- Where content is publicly viewable, it’s generally just chit chat
  - Some is political, commenting on the day’s news, some concerns sport, some just conversation between people who spend most of the day driving around London
  - Some respond to customers who have had bad experiences with PHV firms
Blogs and forums

Blogs and forums are used for lengthier dialogue
There are numerous taxi drivers’ forums

There is publicly available content, and that which requires registration

Many contain blogs which appear to be fairly popular
- Tend to focus on political issues such as STaN, unlicensed cabs, blacked out windows, taxi drivers’ use of the Olympic routes, touting etc
- This type of forum provides more room for considered debate and there are regular contributors of fairly extensive articles
- Cover a wide variety of issues (traffic, fines, insurance, social media etc)

The topic that generates the most content and passion is that of competition with PH drivers
- That said, factions within the taxi driver community also come through on forums
- The issue of Olympic fare increases recently made this clearly visible

The most recent ‘hot topics’ are the Olympics fare increases, and the Remembrance Day celebrations (during which taxi drivers offered free transport for veterans)
Illegal touting by minicab drivers comes through as the issue that most concerns taxi drivers

There is a strong perception that this is damaging to trade, dangerous for passengers, and that TfL is not doing enough to enforce licence conditions

- The focus on PH drivers’ behaviour is consistent with the concerns raised by taxi drivers in other spheres, including surveys and anecdotal feedback
- There is clearly concern that TfL is not doing enough to ensure fair competition
  - This type of theme is very common (source: http://theandersonshelter.blogspot.com/)
  - The Anderson Shelter is the main champion of this topic, but it has very wide support
- Discourse around touting is very often linked with comment about passenger safety
  - Particularly in relation to late night venues
- News stories about minicab drivers being convicted of offences against passengers are posted on forums, and are much commented upon
  - The subject of blackened out windows in minicabs is also raised in relation to this question
- Some taxi drivers actually make videos of alleged touting offences and post these on Youtube or their blogs
- Other examples of Youtube posts detailing minicabs ‘bad behaviour’
  - http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=rVuubvDSBww&feature=related

Illegal touting by minicab drivers comes through as the issue that most concerns taxi drivers

There is a strong perception that this is damaging to trade, dangerous for passengers, and that TfL is not doing enough to enforce licence conditions

- The focus on PH drivers’ behaviour is consistent with the concerns raised by taxi drivers in other spheres, including surveys and anecdotal feedback
- There is clearly concern that TfL is not doing enough to ensure fair competition
  - This type of theme is very common (source: http://theandersonshelter.blogspot.com/)
  - The Anderson Shelter is the main champion of this topic, but it has very wide support
- Discourse around touting is very often linked with comment about passenger safety
  - Particularly in relation to late night venues
- News stories about minicab drivers being convicted of offences against passengers are posted on forums, and are much commented upon
  - The subject of blackened out windows in minicabs is also raised in relation to this question
- Some taxi drivers actually make videos of alleged touting offences and post these on Youtube or their blogs
- Other examples of Youtube posts detailing minicabs ‘bad behaviour’
  - http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=rVuubvDSBww&feature=related
Use of red routes and Olympic routes is also contentious

Social media can be used to organise demonstrations against perceived injustices

➤ Many taxi drivers are upset about enforcement and rules regarding their privileged use of bus / Olympic routes
  • Indeed, a protest is planned for 6 October on this very issue as advertised on the Anderson Shelter website

➤ See also this article on the United Cabbies group website

---

Go Johnny Go... Forth and Multiply!
Addison Lee Lose Legal Challenge Appeal to get in Bus Lanes!

Some particularly helpful taxi drivers post road updates and other useful information

There are a few very active and influential content generators

- Stormcab is a well respected blogger, despite apparently believing he is “Part Stormtrooper, part Taxi Driver”
- His site which is updated regularly contains useful information including:
  - London Road and Points updates
  - London PCN hotspots
  - Useful websites
  - “London taxi lingo” (abbreviations and slang)
- Like others, Stormcab also uses his blog to share information about his personal interests

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Places</th>
<th>Details</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Arsehole of the World</td>
<td>Deptford SE8</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Batcave</td>
<td>Westfield Shopping Centre (16) Lower Robert Street WC2 Area under Charing Cross Station (there seems to be a debate as to what EXACTLY it refers to)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Blackfriars Underpants</td>
<td>Blackfriars Underpass</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Bone</td>
<td>Marylebone Station</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bulling</td>
<td>The crescent at the entrance to back of Royal Hospital Chelsea Embankment</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>CKs</td>
<td>Chelsea Kitchen (Fulham Rd)</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Unles you are a taxi, you cannot stop outside. If you are a taxi you cannot wait for too long.

Drivers are now receiving PCNs.

Camera is on Southside Kensington High Street, between Warwick Gdns & Warwick Rd.

Camera is about 10 ft along Beak St from Lexington on northside. So most of Beak St covered.
Taxi drivers’ views on their customers

This is a topic of much debate on taxi driver forums

- There is a whole spectrum of viewpoints on customers’ rights and responsibilities.

- Some take the view that it’s ‘my cab, my rules’, and tend to complain about customers who want to make a short journey, question the route or don’t tip.

- Others regard the ‘customer as king’ and give short shrift to the ‘moaners’.

- This discussion sometimes ranges into the territory of what happens when there are PCO complaints, with some viewing the customer as ‘always right’ and challenging those who moan about customers who complain when they are refused a taxi for a short journey, for example.
Private hire
Private hire drivers much less obviously vocal on Twitter

It could just be that they are hard to find, but it appears that Twitter use is much lower amongst PHV drivers

- Instead, some PHV companies tend to tweet adverts for their services
- Some have Facebook pages, or even adverts on Gumtree
- Addison Lee has a much bigger presence
  - They have a Twitter feed and dedicated App

@AddisonLeeCabs
Addison Lee

@standardnews Black cab fare rises - for the record, Addison Lee will not be raising fares during Olympics. #businessasusual

Cab 4 Now
@Cab4Now London
I drive a private hire cab in London. I'm licensed by TfL which is the same regulatory body that licenses the great London black cab - http://Cab4Now.com
http://Cab4Now.com

Follow

minicabs4less Minicabs London
How Do I Book a London Mini cab?: If you’re new to the city, booking a minicab is via 02088 105080, @minicabs4less, live chat or online.
5 Oct

LinkDyrUK UK Link Directory
Super Minicab London Most Affordable Minib: We are provider of minicab and premium chauffeur drive services ... bit.ify/pUDqpA
1 Oct
There are now probably at least a dozen Apps for booking black cabs / PHV
- Some offer a full booking service but many at the moment just provide phone numbers for local firms
- However, the lack of a single platform (Android, iPhone, BlackBerry, Ovi etc) and the fact that individual Apps are not available on all platforms means that taxi drivers (and customers) need to choose
  - Other services use a special box which is installed in vehicles
- Further down the road there may be either convergence of platforms, or ‘survival of the fittest’ where one comes to dominate
- At the moment the App world is pretty divided into Apps for taxi drivers, and those for PH drivers
  - Seems likely to remain this way given the animosity between the two groups – particularly in London though not perhaps elsewhere in the country
- This topic is the subject of various taxi driver blogs for example:
- For taxi drivers, some see the Apps as a way of winning back business from the minicab trade
  - But there is a worry amongst some that taxi drivers will use the system to cherry pick big jobs, and this will drive customers away
Taxi Apps

There is widespread discussion of these Apps on taxi driver forums

- Get Taxi launched in August this year
  - It’s a live taxi service using GPS to order taxis direct to your location
  - Available on iPhone, Android and BlackBerry
  - Costs drivers £5 a week plus 10% per job capped at £19 per week for account work, and £1 per ride for cash
  - Get Taxi issue a free driver’s box

- cab:app is available on all platforms (iPhone, Android, BlackBerry, Ovi)
  - Both drivers and customers use the smartphone technology (rather than a box)
  - £1 per job, paid in advance as ‘PAYG credit’

- Hailo has recently launched after a development phase
  - It was developed by a group of drivers and appears to be popular
  - Similar to cap:app in payment - PAYG
  - Has a credit card facility and a messaging service
  - Claims to be ‘TfL approved’

- LDNTaxiApp is only available on iPhone at present
PHV Apps

There is a wide variety out there

- Full service bookings
  - ubiCabs (iPhone/Android); PHV
  - Kabbee (iPhone/Android); PHV
  - Cab4Now (not yet launched); PHV
  - Safer Minicabs (iPhone/Android/Windows phone); PHV
  - Addison Lee (iPhone/Android/BlackBerry); PHV

- There are also services which just give you the phone numbers of local operators, e.g.
  - One Click Cab (iPhone/Android); PHV
  - Charges you 5p to connect the call

- It’s hard to tell which will become the dominant player, Kabbee and Cab4Now are most prominent in the media
  - There is a lot of buzz around these Apps, but how this relates to life in the ‘real world’ remains to be seen
  - Further research would allow us to find out more about the views of operators and drivers on these new technologies, as well as understand how much support they have from customers
Customers
Customers also vocal on Twitter

Mixture of positive comments and complaints

- In some ways taxi journeys lend themselves to Twitter comment
  - As such there tends to be a reasonable amount of content
- Black cabs and Addison Lee are the best known / most Tweeted about
  - Probably because of their ubiquity
- General comments tend to revolve around drivers needing directions, complaints about fares/rates, missed appointments or illegal minicabs (it seems that there is a general awareness of the difference between booked and unbooked minicabs)

Dombelina Dombelina
I know I've said it before, but I really do resent paying the same taxi fare to have my bones shaken by a really old fashioned black cab.
54 minutes ago

brookekinsella brookekinsella
Thank you to the angel disguised as a black cab driver who saved me today - and no dad it wasn't you :D Some very kind people out there
3 Oct

katymoseley Katy Moseley
My Addison Lee driver is beyond clueless I have had to direct him as he has spent the whole journey on his mobile useless
3 Oct

Bradwell Simpson Bradwell Simpson
Black cab don't take black man 21 hours ago

widerider Martin Brown
So lost in NW London. Trying to get to SE. Only one thing for it. Minicab.
1 Oct
On other social media customers are less active

We have found mentions of taxis and PHV on various forums but they are rarely the main topic of conversation

- The most commonly observed topic is found on forums and relates to retrieving lost property

- There are various forums and blogs advising Londoners and those new to the Capital on the dangers of unbooked minicabs which generate some content
  - And some providing information on how to use the taxi system in London aimed at visitors

- There are some videos on Youtube showing minicab / taxi drivers doing things they shouldn’t, including by cyclists with video cameras on their helmets
  - http://youtu.be/EyNJ5OqUYjQ
  - http://youtu.be/DRQ0wCr-Nrl

- Black Cabs are relatively photogenic, and appear in reasonable quantities on Flickr
  - And some (mainly overseas visitors) post videos of themselves in Black Cabs
  - http://youtu.be/ePTSA6GXyjM
At present the number of taxi drivers using social media is relatively low
• As an estimate it may be around 1,000 (out of a total of around 25,000 taxi drivers in London), with a smaller group actively generating and controlling content
• But online presence in the market is growing (Radio Taxi for example reports steady growth in online bookings and anticipation that this will continue)

Even though the numbers generating content are not hugely substantial, the growth of the App market and smart phone penetration mean that increasing numbers of TPH drivers are able to receive information through social media
• As more Apps are developed to help link up customers and drivers, it will become impossible not to be online
• Many of the App developers are also using social media with Twitter pages to reach taxi drivers and customers, bringing them into contact with the various media

Although use of social media is growing amongst the TPH trade, it is not for everyone and penetration has not reached the point where this could be the sole method of communicating with them
• As such, other communication channels will still be required, which could include printed materials, email (although we do not know take up amongst the TPH trade), trade publications, TfL website etc

TPH drivers may follow TfL on Twitter if content is sufficiently motivating / relevant
• For example if up to date road travel information can be provided as part of the deal
• But taxi drivers in particular may not allow TfL to access the content screened off from general view

Summary – the future
The ability to communicate with the trade through social media will only increase over time
Sources

Sources included the following

Forums
- http://theandersonshelter.blogspot.com/
- http://londontaxiforum.co.uk/default.aspx
- http://legaledoff.com/about/
- http://ucg-london.co.uk/
- http://www.stormcab.com/
- www.youtube.com
- http://www.ltda.co.uk/
Facebook
Apps
- http://www.taxizapp.com/about/
- http://www.cabapp.net/
- http://cab4now.com/
- http://www.kabbee.com/