

Planning a journey

Scenarios Supporting notes

TfL website: Journey Planner - planning a journey online

Scenario 1

A group of friends have planned to go cycling late at night. However, one of them discovers that his brother has borrowed his detachable lights, but the rest of the group say he will be fine and should come anyway.

Scenario 2

Some friends want to cycle to the local park, but the roads that take them there do not have cycle lanes. They have been told by their parents not to go on the road as there is a lot of traffic and a busy roundabout. They decide to ignore their parents' advice.

Scenario 3

On a trip home from school a group of friends decide to sit upstairs at the back of the bus. Some of the friends stand up to talk to some friends further down the bus. The bus driver requests for all the people unseated upstairs to either sit down or come and stand downstairs. His request is ignored.

Scenario 4

On the way to a local football match a group of friends start playing football on the pavement. They are having a good time passing the ball to one another when they begin to tackle each other over possession of the ball.

Scenario 5

A group of friends are walking along the river Thames near the South Bank. They are playing a harmless game of dares. Then one of the friends is dared to throw the life buoy at a passing boat.

Scenario 6

During winter time when the tide is low a group of local teenagers decide to investigate the mudflats underneath a local bridge. The tide will not be coming in for a few hours and the teenagers want to explore further down river.

Scenario 7

During a play fight on an Underground station platform one person drops their mobile phone on the track. Someone says they have 5 minutes before the next train is due and that should be enough time to go and get it.

Scenario 8

A group of friends board a train but one person gets on a different carriage. They can see their friends in the adjoining carriage and they want to join in their conversation too. They decide to use the interconnecting doors to pass from one carriage to another.

Planning a journey

Date

Name

Use this storyboard to record your story in pictures and words. Try using speech and thought bubbles.

Storyboard

Planning a journey

Journey writing frame

Use this writing frame to make notes that will help you write your story

